Mrs. Loren Woolston, instructor of basic mathematics, gives first class under way.

100 Students Begin Studies
As Finger Lakes College Opens

By MARGE VAN ISEGHEN
Special to The Times-Union

CANANDAIGUA—Community College of the Finger Lakes launched the initial semester here last night.

Nearly 100 students began classes in temporary quarters in the new wing of Canandaigua Senior Academy.

Enrollment finds Ontario County, the college sponsor, having students from several surrounding counties. These include Yates, Livingston and Seneca. Charge-back fees are assessed, according to law, for out-of-county students.

As the new two-year college began in temporary classrooms, trustees began planning selection of a permanent campus.

Authorization was given to commence interviewing architects to draw long range development plans for a permanent location and renderings of initial college buildings. Dr. Collins W. Carpenter, trustee chairman, said the move was made last night so that a choice of architect could be made by the end of the year.

Three locations are under consideration as the permanent college site. A consulting firm is drawing evaluations of the best three areas and last night trustees made plans to engage an appraiser at $125 per day. The job will take no more than 15 days, trustees said. The fee is a part of the consulting firm's service.

The trustees also:

Authorized the building and grounds committee, Raymond Probst as chairman, to negotiate for rental of two dwellings owned by Rochester Gas & Electric Corp. The Parrish Street houses are to be used for library and temporary classrooms. RG&E has offered use of the buildings to the college, rental to cover the corporation's cost of taxes on the property.

Engaged Price Waterhouse for audit and setup of accounting procedure on an hourly basis. The job is estimated at about $500 for the initial work.

Dr. Roy I. Satre, college president, reported on first semester non-credit courses, staff and plans for the credit program for February 1969.

Trustees meet again Oct. 9.